Introduction

¶1 These are truly extraordinary times.

¶2 Just three weeks ago, life in Arizona was normal. Our children were in school, people were gathering at sporting events, festivals, restaurants, and shopping malls, and our small businesses were flourishing. And for those Arizonans who had chosen to exercise their longstanding constitutional right to legislate by initiative, it was prime time to participate in democracy; they were outside, conversing with registered voters, and gathering petition signatures. This was precisely the case for Petitioners/Plaintiffs Arizonans for Second Chances, Rehabilitation, and Public Safety (Sponsored by ASJ Action Fund) (“Second Chances”), Smart and Safe Arizona (“Smart and Safe”), Invest in Education (Sponsored by AEA and Stand for Children) (“Invest in Education”), and Save Our Schools Arizona (“SOSAZ”), all political action committees supporting statewide initiative measures (collectively, the “Initiative Proponents”). For them, direct democracy—as envisioned by the framers of the Arizona Constitution—was in full swing.

¶3 The Novel Coronavirus 2019 (“COVID-19”) pandemic changed, quite literally, everything. To date, there are 186,101 confirmed cases of COVID-19 in the United States, 1,413 in Arizona. COVID-19 has killed 3,603 Americans, 29 of them fellow Arizonans. President Donald Trump issued a national declaration of emergency, Governor Doug Ducey did the same, and restaurants, bars, and other places where people congregate in most of the state have been closed for weeks. Just yesterday, Governor Ducey’s “Stay Home, Stay Healthy, Stay Connected” order went into effect, precluding Arizonans from leaving their homes except for performing certain narrowly-defined “essential” functions. The Centers for Disease Control recommends avoiding “social gatherings in groups of ten or more people,” that “older persons” and those with “serious underlying health condition[s]” should “stay home and away from other people,” and that all of us practice “social distancing” by maintaining a six foot buffer. The effect of these official proclamations and guidance is stark. Traffic is non-existent, streets are empty, large events are cancelled, and people are staying at home when possible to help mitigate the spread of COVID-19.

valid petition signatures that each of the Initiative Proponents needs to qualify for the ballot in November 2020, they are left without an effective and safe way to continue their signature gathering efforts. Obtaining petition signatures for an initiative requires personal interaction in close quarters and the exchange of a petition sheet signed by others. And while there are certain precautionary measures that the Initiative Proponents are taking to decrease the risk of COVID-19 transmission in this process, there are no certainties. But more than that, large public events that have historically been the ripest ground for gathering petition signatures will now be non-existent for at least another month, but probably longer. In short, signature gathering will halt, and the Initiative Proponents' hard work and investment is in jeopardy.

¶5 Article IV, part 1, section 1\(2\) of the Arizona Constitution guarantees Arizonans the right to legislate by initiative, a right understood by this Court and the Legislature to be “fundamental.” Direct Sellers Ass’n v. McBrayer, 109 Ariz. 3, 6 (1972). It follows that the laws enacted by the Legislature to implement this fundamental right cannot work to effectively preclude its meaningful exercise, even amid a national, state, and local emergency. Yet that is the situation in which the Initiative Proponents find themselves. While they face this impediment to their constitutional right, state and federal candidates can gather nomination petition signatures through a “secure online signature collection” system known as “E-Qual” maintained by the Secretary of State (“Secretary”). See A.R.S. §§ 16-316, 16-318; see also <https://apps.azsos.gov/equal/>. Arizonans thus have the right to safely sign candidate petitions from the comfort of their own homes; they do not, however, enjoy that same right for initiative petitions. The Initiative Proponents should have had access to E-Qual from the get-go. But at the very least, current exigencies demand that they now have access to that system starting immediately, and until the deadline to submit initiative petitions and signatures (July 2, 2020).

¶6 For these reasons, the Initiative Proponents ask this Court to exercise its original and special action jurisdiction, and order the Secretary to permit them to gather initiative petition signatures through E-Qual. This result is required by Article IV, principles of equal protection and due process, and the Initiative Proponents’ right to free speech. Our democratic institutions, including those of direct democracy, can and should rise up and adapt to meet the challenges we face today as a society. This Court should thus grant the Initiative Proponents the narrow, expedited relief they seek.

Jurisdictional Statement

¶7 This Court has original jurisdiction over “mandamus, injunction and other extraordinary writs to state officers.” ARIZ. CONST. art. VI, § 5\(1\). The circumstances here—involving an unprecedented national public health crisis and the exercise of a fundamental constitutional right—more than justify the Court’s exercise of its discretionary jurisdiction to grant the Initiative Proponents the narrow relief they seek.

¶8 This Petition presents an important legal question of first impression: whether the fundamental constitutional rights of the Initiative Proponents are violated by their exclusion from an online petition signature gathering system maintained by the Secretary in the middle of a public health emergency that severely limits (or outright bars) their ability to otherwise collect initiative petition signatures. This is plainly an issue of “substantial public importance” that requires an expedient and final interpretation of the Arizona Constitution. See, e.g., Dobson v. State ex rel., Comm’n on Appellate Court Appointments, 233

Ariz. 119, 121 ¶¶ 7-8 (2013) (“Special action jurisdiction is appropriate here because the petition presents purely legal questions of statewide importance that turn on interpreting Arizona’s Constitution” and “because the case requires an immediate and final resolution”); Ariz. Indep. Redistricting Comm’n v. Brewer, 229 Ariz. 347, 351 ¶ 14 (2012) (“We exercised our discretion to accept special action jurisdiction because the legal issues raised required prompt resolution and are of first impression and statewide importance”); Randolph v. Groscost, 195 Ariz. 423, 425 ¶ 6 (1999) (accepting jurisdiction because the “dispute involves a matter of substantial public importance, raises only issues of law, and requires the interpretation of a provision of the Arizona Constitution”); Fairness & Accountability in Ins. Reform v. Greene, 180 Ariz. 582, 586 (1994) (accepting jurisdiction because the case raised “a constitutional issue of first impression and statewide importance”).

¶9 The Initiative Proponents filed this action directly with this Court, as permitted by Rule 7\(b\) of the Arizona Rules of Procedure for Special Actions, because an immediate, final decision is needed. Every day that the Initiative Proponents cannot use E-Equal to gather petition signatures is another day their signature collection efforts are effectively halted, all-the-while the number of days between now and the July 2, 2020 deadline continues to shrink. Only this Court can provide immediate and final relief.

Statement of Issues

¶10 Arizona, along with the rest of the country, is in the midst of a public health crisis under which it is unsafe and near-impossible for the Initiative Proponents to gather initiative petition signatures in the only meaningful way authorized by existing law: in person, and primarily in places where large groups of people typically congregate. Candidates, on the other hand, can gather their nomination petition signatures through a secure online system that is unaffected by the ongoing crisis. Does the exclusion of the Initiative Proponents from that system under these circumstances violate their constitutional rights?

Statement of Material Facts

A. The Initiative Process.

¶11 Under Arizona law, the proponent of a statewide initiative measure begins its process by filing with the Secretary an application for petition serial number. See A.R.S. § 19-111\(A\). The proponent is issued a serial number, id. § 19-111\(B\), and can then begin circulating petitions bearing that serial number. The form of a petition is carefully prescribed by law; among other things, it must be attached to “a full and correct copy of the title and text of the measure” at all times. See A.R.S. §§ 19-101, 19-102, 19-112, 19-121.

¶12 Those petitions are then circulated throughout the State, and a petition circulator must affirm under penalty of perjury that “each individual printed the individual’s own name and address and signed th[e] sheet of the foregoing petition in [their] presence on the date indicated.” A.R.S. § 19-112\(D\). Petitions must be filed with the Secretary “not less than four months preceding the date of the election at which the measures so proposed are to be voted upon,” ARIZ. CONST. art. IV, pt. 1, § 1\(4\), and thus to be eligible for the November 2020 ballot, must be submitted on or before July 2, 2020. See Ariz. Sec’y of State, Initiative Referendum and Recall, <https://azsos.gov/elections/initiative-referendum-and-recall>. This election cycle, 237,645 valid petition signatures are required to qualify an initiative measure for the ballot. Id. Due to lawsuits challenging circulators, petitions, and signatures (which are the norm in Arizona), proponents of statewide initiatives typically try to collect at least 40% more signatures than the minimum requirement to account for invalid and duplicate signatures.

B. The Parties.

¶13 Petitioner/Plaintiff Second Chances is an Arizona political action committee. [APP039] It is the proponent of the Second Chances, Rehabilitation, and Public Safety Act (I-32-2020), a statewide initiative measure filed with the Secretary of State on February 18, 2020 for which it is currently gathering petition signatures. [Id.] Second Chances is utilizing primarily paid petition circulators through two separate vendors: AZ Petition Partners, LLC (“Petition Partners”) and Arizona Grassroots Advocates (“AGA”). [Id.] To date, it has gathered approximately 66,000 total signatures. [Id.] Under normal circumstances, Second Chances would be able to collect the requisite number of valid signatures prior to the July 2, 2020 deadline. [APP040]

¶14 Petitioner/Plaintiff Smart and Safe is an Arizona political action committee. [APP039] It is the proponent of the Smart and Safe Arizona Act (I-23-2020), a statewide initiative measure filed with the Secretary of State on September 26, 2019 for which it is currently gathering signatures. [Id.] Smart and Safe is utilizing primarily paid petition circulators through Petition Partners. [Id.] To date, it has gathered just under the number of signatures required to qualify. [Id.] Under normal circumstances, Smart and Safe would be able to collect the requisite number of valid signatures prior to the July 2, 2020 deadline. [APP040]

¶15 Invest in Education is an Arizona political action committee. [APP039-040] It is the proponent of the Invest in Education Act (I-31-2020), a statewide initiative measure filed with the Secretary of State on February 14, 2020 for which it is currently gathering petition signatures. [APP040] Invest in Education is utilizing a combination of paid petition circulators through Petition Partners and volunteer petition circulators, many of whom are teachers. [Id.] To date, it has gathered approximately 85,000 total signatures. [Id.] Under normal circumstances, Invest in Education would be able to collect the requisite number of valid signatures prior to the July 2, 2020 deadline. [Id.]

¶16 SOSAZ is an Arizona political action committee. [APP044] It is the proponent of the Save Our Schools Act (I-33-2020), a statewide initiative measure filed with the Secretary of State on February 26, 2020 for which it is currently gathering petition signatures. [Id.] SOSAZ is attempting to collect petition signature using only volunteer petition circulators, comprised of parents and grandparents, educators, retirees, and other concerned citizens. [Id.] To date, it has gathered approximately 50,000 total signatures. [Id.] Under normal circumstances, SOSAZ would be able to collect the requisite number of valid signatures prior to the July 2, 2020 deadline. [APP045]

¶17 Respondent/Defendant Katie Hobbs is the duly elected Secretary of State. In that capacity, she is statutorily responsible for the creation and maintenance of the “E-Qual” secure online signature collection system at the heart of this action. See A.R.S. §§ 16-316, 16-318; see also <https://apps.azsos.gov/equal/>. The Secretary is an “officer” for purposes of Rule 2\(a\)\(1\) of the Arizona Rules of Procedure for Special Actions.

C. Traditional Petition Signature Gathering.

¶18 Petition signature gathering generally occurs through a face-to-face, interpersonal interaction. [APP049; APP055] A petition circulator generally carries a clipboard with the petition (attached to the title and text), approaches a potential signer, and asks if they would be interested in signing. [Id.] A dialogue between the parties often follows, as potential signers often have questions or want to know more about the particular measure. [Id.] And if the petition circulator is successful, they ultimately give the petition and a pen to the signer to sign and print all required information. [APP050; APP055-056] Because each petition sheet has fifteen signature lines, each sheet could come into contact with at least sixteen people (i.e., all signers, plus the circulator).

¶19 Petition signatures can be gathered in many different places, but historically, large public gatherings—with a large potentially-captive audience—are the most efficient locations. This includes sporting events, political rallies, school functions, festivals, and cultural events (such as the Arizona State Fair). [APP050] Good petition circulators also identify prime locations in cultural centers to perform their duties. This includes the areas outside of libraries and other public buildings, and street corners in high-traffic areas such as downtown Phoenix, Old Town Scottsdale, and Mill Avenue in Tempe. [APP050-051] Petition circulation can also be accomplished by going door-to-door. [APP056]

D. The COVID-19 Pandemic.

¶20 As the World Health Organization explains with respect to coronaviruses and COVID-19 specifically:

Coronaviruses (CoV) are a large family of viruses that cause illness ranging from the common cold to more severe diseases such as Middle East Respiratory Syndrome (MERS-CoV) and Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS-CoV).

Coronavirus disease (COVID-19) is a new strain that was discovered in 2019 and has not been previously identified in humans.

Common signs of infection include respiratory symptoms, fever, cough, shortness of breath and breathing difficulties. In more severe cases, infection can cause pneumonia, severe acute respiratory syndrome, kidney failure and even death.

Standard recommendations to prevent infection spread include regular hand washing, covering mouth and nose when coughing and sneezing, thoroughly cooking meat and eggs. Avoid close contact with anyone showing symptoms of respiratory illness such as coughing and sneezing.

World Health Organization, Coronavirus, <https://www.who.int/health-topics/coronavirus> (last visited Apr. 1, 2020). The virus “is stable for several hours to days in aerosols and on surfaces,” including for up to twenty-four hours on cardboard. Nat’l Institutes of Health, New Coronavirus stable for hours on surfaces (Mar. 17, 2020), <https://www.nih.gov/news-events/news-releases/new-coronavirus-stable-hours-surfaces> (last visited Apr. 1, 2020). What began as a small outbreak in Wuhan, China has quickly evolved into a global pandemic. World Health Organization, WHO Director-General’s opening remarks at ¶21 According to the CDC, there are currently 186,101 confirmed cases of COVID-19 in the United States, and COVID-19 has caused at least 3,603 deaths. Centers for Disease Control, Cases in U.S., <https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/cases-updates/cases-in-us.html> (last visited Apr. 1, 2020). According to the Arizona Department of Health Services (“ADHS”), 1,413 of those cases and 29 of those deaths are attributable to Arizonans. Ariz. Dep’t of Health Svcs., Coronavirus Home, <https://www.azdhs.gov/preparedness/epidemiology-disease-control/infectious-disease-epidemiology/index.php#novel-coronavirus-home> (last visited Apr. 1, 2020).

¶22 On March 11, 2020, Governor Doug Ducey declared a state of emergency in the State of Arizona due to COVID-19. Ariz. Governor’s Office, *Declaration of Emergency *COVID-19 (Mar. 11, 2020), https://azgovernor.gov/sites/default/files/declaraton_0.pdf (last visited Apr. 1, 2020). In that declaration, Governor Ducey stated that “COVID-19 poses a serious public health threat for infectious disease spread to Arizona residents and visitors if proper precautions recommended by public health are not followed.” Id. He further stated that there is “reasonable cause to believe the spread of COVID-19 can lead to severe respiratory illness, disease, complications, and death for Arizona residents, particularly those with underlying medical conditions or the elderly.” Id. Governor Ducey went even further on March 19, 2020 when he issued an executive order closing bars, movie theaters, and on-site dining in restaurants in counties affected by COVID-19. See Ariz. Governor’s Office, Executive Order 2020-09 (Mar. 19, 2020), https://azgovernor.gov/sites/default/files/eo_2020-09_0.pdf.

¶23 Two days after Governor Ducey first acted, President Donald Trump followed and declared a national emergency related to COVID-19. White House, Proclamation on Declaring a National Emergency Concerning the Novel Coronavirus Disease (COVID-19) Outbreak (Mar. 13, 2020) <https://www.whitehouse.gov/presidential-actions/proclamation-declaring-national-emergency-concerning-novel-coronavirus-disease-covid-19-outbreak/> (last visited Apr. 1, 2020)

¶24 At the local level, cities across the state declared states of emergency, with several also requiring the closure of places where the public is known to congregate. See, e.g., City of Tucson, Proclamation of the Mayor Declaring an Emergency or Local Emergency (Mar. 17, 2020), <https://www.tucsonaz.gov/files/PROCLAMATION.pdf>. The attorney general recently opined that “local law enforcement officials and county sheriffs have authority to enforce provisions of lawful emergency declarations issued by cities and towns, and violations of such orders are class 1 misdemeanors.” Ariz. Att’y Gen. Op. I20-006, available at <https://www.azag.gov/sites/default/files/2020-03/I20-006.pdf>.

¶25 In an attempt to preempt certain emergency actions taken by cities and towns and establish continuity across the state, Governor Ducey issued another executive order on March 23, 2020 to define the categories of “essential services” that could be closed. Ariz. Governor’s Office, Executive Order 2020-12, Prohibiting the Closure of Essential Services, https://azgovernor.gov/sites/default/files/eo_2021_0.pdf (last visited Apr. 1, 2020) (the “Essential Services Order”).

¶26 Other state institutions have been profoundly affected. On March 30, 2020, Governor Ducey and Superintendent of Public Instruction Kathy Hoffman announced the closure of all K-12 schools in the state through the end of this school year. Governor Ducey, visited Apr. 1, 2020). In addition, this Court has issued two administrative orders related to court operations, and many lower courts have followed with their own orders.

(last

¶27 In the meantime, President Trump—through the CDC—issued “Coronavirus Guidelines for America” as follows:

The White House and Centers for Disease Control, The President's Coronavirus Guidelines for America, https://www.whitehouse.gov/wp-content/uploads/2020/03/03.16.20_coronavirus-

content/uploads/2020/03/03.16.20_coronavirus-

recommends that Americans practice “social distancing” by avoiding “congregate settings,” “mass gatherings,” and “maintaining distance (approximately 6 feet or 2 meters) from others when possible.” Centers for Disease Control, Interim US Guidance for Risk Assessment and Public Health Management of Persons with Potential Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) Exposures: Geographic Risk and Contacts of Laboratory-confirmed Cases, <https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/php/risk-assessment.html> (last visited Apr. 1, 2020). ADHS is following the guidance provided by the federal government.

¶28 Finally, on March 30, 2020, Governor Ducey issued a new executive order entitled “Stay Home, Stay Healthy, Stay Connected.” Ariz. Governor’s Office, Executive Order No. 2020-18, Stay Home, Stay Healthy, Stay Connected, available at <https://www.azdhs.gov/documents/preparedness/epidemiology-disease-control/infectious-disease-epidemiology/novel-coronavirus/eo-stay-home-stay-healthy-stay-connected.pdf> (last visited Apr. 1, 2020) (the “Stay Home Order”). Effective on March 31 at 5:00 PM, Arizonans are “required to limit their time away from their place of residence or property” except for performing certain “Essential Activities,” “Essential Functions,” and “Essential Business” as generally set forth in the Essential Services

Order. Id. The failure to comply with the Stay Home Order carries with it potential criminal sanctions. Id.; see also A.R.S. § 26-317 (“Any person who violates any provision of this chapter or who knowingly fails or refuses to obey any lawful order or regulation issued as provided in this chapter shall be guilty of a class 1 misdemeanor.”). The Stay Home Order, on its face, excludes “[e]ngaging in constitutionally protected activities such as speech and religion, and any legal or court process provided that such is conducted in a manner that provides appropriate physical distancing to the extent feasible.” Stay Home Order, § 4\(f\). Of course, this exclusion exists within the broader mandate and strong urging of public health officials to stay home and limit contact with others.

¶29 Meanwhile, another large-scale door-to-door operation, the United States Census, has suspended its own field operations due to concerns about COVID-19. U.S. Census Bureau, Census Bureau Update on 2020 Census Field Operations (Mar. 28, 2020), available at <https://www.census.gov/newsroom/press-releases/2020/update-on-2020-census-field-operations.html> (last visited Apr. 1, 2020). In other words, the situation is so dire that an agency of the federal government has deemed it unsafe to go door-to-door to conduct its critical census work.

E. COVID-19 and Traditional Petition Signature Gathering.

¶30 As the COVID-19 pandemic worsened, as Arizonans began following CDC and ADHS guidance, and as cities began requiring the closure of areas where members of the public typically gather, the Initiative Proponents' signature gathering efforts slowed dramatically. [APP040-041; APP045] For weeks, there have been no more large-scale events at which to gather signatures, and the closure of public buildings and bars and restaurants in high-traffic areas means those locations cannot be counted on. [APP040-041; APP045; APP051] And where there are still potential signers out and about (e.g., grocery stores), there are physical distancing protocols in place (such as in lines outside stores) and people are increasingly hesitant to interact despite the use of mitigation measures by petition circulators (including the mandatory use of hand sanitizer, single use pens, and the use of disinfectant on clipboards and other materials). [APP045; APP051]

¶31 In addition, due to the CDC's social distancing recommendations, door-to-door signature collection productivity dropped significantly. [APP056] People were increasingly hesitant to open their door and interact with strangers [APP056], and rightfully so under these extreme circumstances.

¶32 Despite the Stay Home Order’s purported carve-out for “speech,” the seriousness it conveys has exponentially exacerbated these problems. To the extent there were few potential petition signers out and about before the Stay Home Order went into effect, those numbers have only further decreased. [APP052-053; APP057] In addition, people are even more leery of opening their doors to strangers. [APP057-58] As one petition circulating firm explains, “[w]hen people open their doors, they overwhelmingly refuse to touch the clipboard, petition sheet, and pens necessary to sign the petition. Many people have commented to the circulator that he or she should not be going door-to-door and that it is not safe or legal.” [Id.] Just today, two door-to-door petition circulators were met at two separate doors with threats that the occupants would call law enforcement while citing the Stay Home Order. [APP057-058] This problem is certain to get worse as the Stay Home Order has an increasingly-strong psychological effect on Arizonans. [See APP041; APP046]

F. The E-Qual System.

¶33 Under current law, the Secretary is required to “provide a system for qualified electors to sign a nomination . . . by way of a secure internet portal” that “provide[s] a method for the qualified elector’s identity to be properly verified.” See A.R.S. §§ 16-316, 16-318. It is currently available to federal candidates, statewide candidates, and legislative candidates. Id. That system is known as “E-Qual,” and is available at <https://apps.azsos.gov/equal/>. It is accessible and easy to use; a potential signer is required to enter their name, date of birth, and either their driver license/non-operating identification number or their voter registration number and the last four numbers of their social security number. <https://apps.azsos.gov/apps/election/eps/op/>. “Once the voter is verified as a registered voter, E-Qual determines which nomination petitions the voter is eligible to sign . . . based on the voter’s registration information. If a voter chooses to sign a nomination petition . . ., the voter’s signature that is on file with the statewide voter registration database is affixed to the petition.” Id. It is efficient for both voters and candidates. At present, however, E-Qual is unavailable to those gathering signatures for initiatives.

¶34 The Initiative Proponents’ understanding is that E-Equal can be adapted to be available for their initiative petition signature collection with relative ease. The Initiative Proponents—with this Court’s intervention—could successfully transition to an electronic signature gathering effort in the very near future. [APP042; APP047] Making minor adjustments to an existing system to extend it to Initiative Proponents’ measures is necessary to protect Arizonans’ rights.

Argument

¶35 This is a case about preserving the people’s ability to exercise their fundamental constitutional right to legislate by initiative against the backdrop of an unprecedented public health crisis that effectively prevents them from doing so. That E-Equal is not available to the Initiative Proponents in this time of crisis is simply unconscionable. Fortunately, the remedy is simple, and is justified by both the Arizona Constitution and United States Constitution for the reasons that follow.

I. The Initiative Proponents’ Inability to Gather Petition Signatures Violates Article IV of the Arizona Constitution.

¶36 First, and most fundamentally, the Initiative Proponents’ effective inability to gather petition signatures under existing law constitutes a direct violation of the self-executing guarantee of the right to legislate by initiative set forth in article IV, part 1, section 1\(2\) of the Arizona Constitution (“Article IV”).

¶37 The framers of the Arizona Constitution were strong “advocates of th[e] method of popular government” known as the initiative and referendum, “and the records of the constitutional convention, together with the language of the [] constitution, show clearly that it was the opinion of the delegates who adopted and signed it that its provisions setting forth these principles were among the most important to be found therein.” Whitman v. Moore, 59 Ariz. 211, 218 (1942). Relevant here, the people’s reserved power to legislate by initiative is enshrined in Article IV, and in interpreting that provision, this Court has emphasized that it is “bound to take . . . into consideration” the importance of this power to our framers and the voters who overwhelmingly approved it. Id.; see also Pedersen v. Bennett, 230 Ariz. 556, 558 ¶ 7 (2012) (“Arizona has a strong policy supporting the people’s exercise of this power.”). As a consequence, this Court has never hesitated to stress the fundamental nature of this right. Direct Sellers Ass’n, 109 Ariz. at 6; League of Ariz. Cities & Towns v. Brewer, 213 Ariz. 557, 559 ¶ 9 (2006).

¶38 “A right without a meaningful opportunity to exercise it is really no right at all,” Martin v. Indus. Comm’n, 120 Ariz. 616, 618 (App. 1978), and the Initiative Proponents presently lack a “meaningful opportunity” to exercise their Article IV rights.¹ And though Article IV is self-executing, see ARIZ. CONST. art. IV, pt. 1, § 1(16), the Legislature can enact implementing legislation if: (1) it does not “unreasonably hinder or restrict the constitutional provision,” and (2) “reasonably supplement[s] the constitutional purpose.” Turley v. Bolin, 27 Ariz. App. 345, 348 (1976) (invalidating an attempt by the Legislature to shorten the period for the filing of petition) (citing Direct Sellers Ass’n, 103 Ariz. at 5).

¶39 Under present circumstances, requiring that initiative petition signatures be gathered and submitted to the Secretary exclusively on paper, and thus compelling personal interaction that runs afoul of the CDC’s “social distancing” guidance, “unreasonably hinder[s] or restrict[s]” Article IV and the Initiative Proponents’ rights thereunder.

It also does not “reasonably supplement” the purpose of Article IV. Under either factor, it is entirely inconsistent with Article IV to require the Initiative Proponents to make the perverse Hobson’s Choice between using the only signature-gathering option while running afoul of public health guidance and abandoning their signature-gathering efforts altogether.

¶40 At bottom, denying the Initiative Proponents access to E-Equal under the current state of emergency is a direct violation of Article IV, one that can be remedied by ordering the Secretary to give them access to that system.

II. Denying the Initiative Proponents Access to E-Equal Violates the Arizona Constitution’s Guarantees of Equal Protection, Due Process, and Free Speech.

¶41 Second, the Initiative Proponents’ inability to utilize E-Equal also violates the Arizona Constitution’s guarantees of equal protection, due process, and free speech. This is another ground on which the Court may grant the Initiative Proponents their requested relief.

A. Equal Protection and Due Process.

¶42 The Arizona Constitution guarantees equal protection and due process as follows: “No law shall be enacted granting to any citizen, class of citizens, or corporation other than municipal, privileges or immunities which, upon the same terms, shall not equally belong to all citizens or corporations,” ARIZ. CONST., art. II, § 13, and “No person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law,” ARIZ. CONST., art. II, § 4. “[C]onceptually, the review of due process and equal protection claims is similar.” Governale v. Lieberman, 226 Ariz. 443, 448 ¶ 13 (App. 2011). If the statute burdens or limits a fundamental right, it “may be upheld only if there is a ‘compelling state interest’ to be served and the regulation is ‘necessary’ to achieve the legislative objective.” Kenyon v. Hammer, 142 Ariz. 69, 78 (1984) (citations omitted). This means that the statute must further the state interest “by the least restrictive means practically available.” Id. at 87 (citation omitted).

¶43 The right to legislate by initiative is fundamental under the Arizona Constitution. See Direct Sellers Ass’n, 109 Ariz. at 6; League of Ariz. Cities & Towns, 213 Ariz. at 559 ¶ 9. The requirement that initiative petition signatures be gathered on paper and in-person when candidates are not so required is thus subject to strict scrutiny. There simply can be no “compelling state interest” in imposing that requirement and shutting the Initiative Proponents out of E-Qual, especially at this time. That restriction also cannot be narrowly tailored.

¶44 In short, denying the Initiative Proponents access to E-Qual under the current state of emergency violates the equal protection and due process guarantees of the Arizona Constitution.

B. Free Speech.

¶45 The Arizona Constitution broadly protects free speech: “[e]very person may freely speak, write, and publish on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right.” ARIZ. CONST. art. II, § 6. This provision “has ‘greater scope than the first amendment.’” State v. Stummer, 219 Ariz. 137, 143 ¶ 17 (2008) (citation omitted). And the right to circulate initiative petitions is one that necessarily involves “core political speech.” Meyer v. Grant, 486 U.S. 414, 421 (1988).

¶46 Because state law permits statewide and legislative candidates to “speak” in additional ways by seeking petition signatures through E-Qual while denying the Initiative Proponents that same right to “speak” for statewide initiative measures, it imposes a content-based restriction on the Initiative Proponents’ speech. “[G]iven Arizona’s constitutional protections, when dealing with regulations that affect speech, the [state] must regulate with narrow specificity so as to affect as little as possible the ability of the sender and receiver to communicate.” Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Ariz. Corp. Comm’n, 160 Ariz. 350, 358 (1989). In addition, “[c]ontent-based laws—those that target speech based on its communicative content—are presumptively unconstitutional and may be justified only if the government proves that they are narrowly tailored to serve compelling state interests.” Reed v. Town of Gilbert, 135 S. Ct. 2218, 2226 (2015).

¶47 As described above (see section II.A, supra), there is no compelling state interest in denying the Initiative Proponents the opportunity to exercise their free speech rights by collecting petition signatures as statewide, legislative, and federal candidates can: in-person, or via a secure, online system that instantly verifies a signer’s identity. Cf. Miracle v. Hobbs, No. CV-19-04694-PHX-SRB, 2019 WL 7631153, at *5 (D. Ariz. Dec. 16, 2019) (noting that the distinction “between nomination-petition and initiative-petition circulators” and that “such a distinction might have a chilling effect on the latter category”).

¶48 For these reasons, denying the Initiative Proponents access to E-Qual under the current state of emergency violates their right to free speech under the Arizona Constitution.

III. Denying the Initiative Proponents Access to E-Qual Is a Denial of the Right to Vote and Equal Protection Under the Fourteenth Amendment.

¶49 Third, the Initiative Proponents’ inability to utilize E-Qual also violates both the fundamental right to vote guaranteed by the United States Constitution, and the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. See also 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

¶50 “[S]tate regulations on the initiative and referendum process implicate the fundamental right to vote,” and “[w]hile a state may decline to grant a right to legislate through ballot initiatives, it may not grant that right on a discriminatory basis.” Lemons v. Bradbury, 538 F.3d 1098, 1102 (9th Cir. 2008); Idaho Coal. United for Bears v. Cenarrusa, 342 F.3d 1073, 1077 n.7 (9th Cir. 2003) (“[W]hen a state chooses to grant the right to vote in a particular form, it subjects itself to the requirements of the Equal Protection Clause.”) The Supreme Court has applied a “flexible standard” to laws regulating the right to vote:

A court considering a challenge to a state election law must weigh the character and magnitude of the asserted injury to the rights protected by the First and Fourteenth Amendments that the plaintiff seeks to vindicate against the precise interests put forward by the State as justifications for the burden imposed by its rule, taking into consideration the extent to which those interests make it necessary to burden the plaintiff's rights.

Burdick v. Takushi, 504 U.S. 428, 432 (1992) (internal quotations and citations omitted). Applying this standard, “strict scrutiny applies only when the right to vote is ‘subjected to severe restrictions.’” Lemons, 538 F.3d at 1102 (citation omitted). But “when a state election law provision imposes only reasonable, nondiscriminatory restrictions upon the First and Fourteenth Amendment rights of voters, the State’s important regulatory interests are generally sufficient to justify the restrictions.” Id. (citation omitted).

¶51 Strict scrutiny should apply to this effective denial of the right to vote. Current exigent circumstances mean that existing law places “severe restrictions” on the Initiative Proponents’ rights. Here again, there is no “compelling state interest” that justifies denying them access to E-Qual. Under similar emergency circumstances, courts have not hesitated to enter injunctive relief appropriate to preserve the fundamental right to vote. See, e.g., Democratic Nat’l Comm. v. Bostelmann, No. 20-CV-249-WMC, 2020 WL 1320819, at *5-6 (W.D. Wis.

Mar. 20, 2020) (finding that concerns due to COVID-19 justified an extension to an online voter registration deadline); Fla. Democratic Party v. Scott, 215 F. Supp. 3d 1250, 1257 (N.D. Fla. 2016) (holding, in the midst of Hurricane Mathew, that “Florida’s statutory framework completely disenfranchises thousands of voters, and amounts to a severe burden on the right to vote”); Ga. Coal. for the Peoples’ Agenda, Inc., v. Deal, 214 F. Supp. 3d 1344, 1345 (S.D. Ga. 2016) (granting preliminary injunction to extend voter-registration deadline due to a hurricane and observing that “an individual’s loss of the right to vote is clearly an irreparable injury that outweighs any damage caused by extending the deadline”); In re Holmes, 788 A.2d 291 (N.J. Sup. Ct. 2002) (allowing ballots received after election day to be counted due to anthrax attacks because “rigid application of the rule . . . would unfairly deprive absentee voters of their franchise as a result of exceptional circumstances neither within their control nor which, in light of human experience, might reasonably be expected.”). This Court should not hesitate to do so here.

¶52 Denying the Initiative Proponents access to E-Qual under the current state of emergency violates their right to vote under the United States Constitution, a violation that can be remedied by narrowly ordering the Secretary to give them access to that system, albeit limited in duration.

IV. Denying the Initiative Proponents Access to E-Qual Violates Equal Protection and the First Amendment.

¶53 Finally, the Initiative Proponents’ inability to utilize E-Qual also violates the free speech guarantees of the First Amendment, as incorporated against the State by the Fourteenth Amendment. See also 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

¶54 The right to circulate initiative petitions is one that necessarily involves “core political speech.” Meyer, 486 U.S. at 421. For the same reason that existing state law now violates the Arizona Constitution’s free speech guarantee (see Section II.B, supra), so too does it violate the First Amendment. By discriminating between candidates and the Initiative Proponents, it is a content-based restriction on the Initiative Proponents’ speech that is “presumptively unconstitutional and may be justified only if the government proves that they are narrowly tailored to serve compelling state interests.” Reed, 135 S. Ct. at 2226. The Secretary cannot carry that heavy burden on these extraordinary facts.

Conclusion

¶55 Decades ago, this Court held that “courts [must] liberally construe initiative requirements and [] not interfere with the people’s right to initiate laws unless the Constitution expressly and explicitly makes any departure from initiative filing requirements fatal.” Whitman, 59 Ariz. at 218. It did so for a compelling reason:

It is, of course, a mere platitude to say that the people are the superior power in our system of government. The history of our Constitution and its adoption, to which we have previously referred, shows beyond the possibility of contradiction that the people themselves deliberately and intentionally announced that, by its adoption, they meant to exercise their supreme sovereign power directly to a far greater extent than had been done in the past, and that the legislative authority, acting in a representative capacity only, was in all respects intended to be subordinate to direct action by the people.

Id. at 220. In other words, the “legislative power of the people is as great as that of the legislature. League of Ariz. Cities & Towns, 213 Ariz. at 559

¶ 9. This Court has long safeguarded this fundamental power from attack. See, e.g., Wilhelm v. Brewer, 219 Ariz. 45, 49 ¶ 19 (2008). The time has come for it to do so once again.

¶56 Just as all three branches of government must adapt to conduct business during times of national and state crisis, so too must the procedures that govern the exercise of the fundamental “right of the people to offer legislation through the initiative.” And so, to protect their rights under Article IV, the Initiative Proponents respectfully request that this Court accept original and special action jurisdiction and grant them the narrow relief they are requesting by: (1) ordering the Secretary to allow them to collect initiative petition signatures for their respective already-filed measures through E-Qual, and (2) enjoining the Secretary from enforcing any provision of Arizona law that would preclude the Initiative Proponents’ use of E-Qual. Arizona’s founding principles demand no less.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED this 2nd day April, 2020.

DECLARATION OF STACY PEARSON

Stacy Pearson states as follows:

1. I am a Senior Vice President with Strategies 360, Inc. (“S360”). In that role, I provide campaign consulting services to candidates, political action committees, companies, and others throughout the State of Arizona. I have provided these services to clients for more than 20 years.

2. I currently serve as the General Consultant (“GC”) for three political action committees that are seeking petition signatures to qualify statewide measures for the ballot in November 2020: Arizonans for Second Chances, Rehabilitation, and Public Safety (Sponsored by ASJ Action Fund) (“Second Chances”), Smart and Safe Arizona (“Smart and Safe”), and Invest in Education (Sponsored by AEA and Stand for Children) (“Invest in Education”). Collectively, I will refer to all three of these political action committees as the “Committees” in this Declaration.

3. As the Committees’ GC, I am responsible for monitoring and managing all aspects of their petition signature-gathering operations. I am in regular contact with the petition circulating vendors they have hired, and am familiar with all other aspects of their signature-gathering processes. I have personal knowledge about the status and tactics employed by each of the Committees, as well as the impact that the Novel Coronavirus 2019 (“COVID-19”) pandemic has had on their respective signature-gathering efforts.

4. Second Chances is the proponent of the Second Chances, Rehabilitation, and Public Safety Act (I-32-2020), a statewide initiative measure filed with the Secretary of State on February 18, 2020 for which it is currently gathering petition signatures. Second Chances is utilizing primarily paid petition circulators through two separate vendors: AZ Petition Partners, LLC (“Petition Partners”) and Arizona Grassroots Advocates (“AGA”). To date, it has gathered approximately 66,000 total signatures.

5. Smart and Safe is the proponent of the Smart and Safe Arizona Act (I-23-2020), a statewide initiative measure filed with the Secretary of State on September 26, 2019 for which it is currently gathering signatures. Smart and Safe is utilizing primarily paid petition circulators through Petition Partners. To date, it has gathered just under the number of signatures required to qualify.

6. Invest in Education is the proponent of the Invest in Education Act (I-31-2020), a statewide initiative measure filed with the Secretary of State on February 14, 2020 for which it is currently gathering petition signatures. Invest in Education is utilizing a combination of paid petition circulators through Petition Partners and volunteer petition circulators, many of whom are teachers who do so in their spare time. To date, it has gathered approximately 85,000 total signatures.

7. Before the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic, the Committees were all on track to gather enough petition signatures – including a substantial “buffer” of additional signatures – in advance of the July 2, 2020 deadline to qualify for the November 2020 ballot.

8. This changed dramatically beginning in the middle of March 2020, when the World Health Organization declared COVID-19 a pandemic, and the federal government, the State, and municipalities in Arizona began to take aggressive measures to prevent its spread.

9. As Arizonans have begun following guidance put out by the Centers for Disease Control and Arizona Department of Health Services, cities with large populations began requiring the closure of areas where members of the public typically gather, and Governor Doug Ducey issued an executive order requiring the closure of restaurants and other establishments in counties with a confirmed case of COVID-19, the Committees' petition signature-gathering efforts slowed dramatically.

10. On March 30, 2020, Governor Doug Ducey issued an executive order titled "Stay Home, Stay Healthy, Stay Connected" that requires Arizonans to limit their time outside their homes except for when they are performing certain "essential activities" and "essential functions" until at least April 30, 2020. The issuance of this order was widely covered in local media, where it has been portrayed as a "stay at home" order like those implemented in various other states. The Committees believe that this order will have a strong psychological effect on Arizonans and will further compound the difficulties they were already encountering before it went into effect.

11. The Committees have explored potential alternatives, such as mailing petitions to interested persons to circulate within their families. This, however, is expensive, inefficient, and has no realistic likelihood of permitting the Committees' to gather large numbers of valid petition signatures.

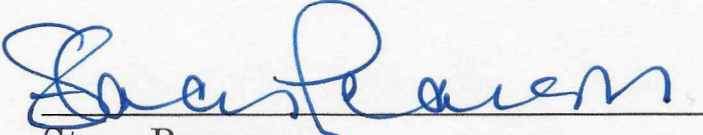

12. In short, due to the COVID-19 pandemic and the various measures taken by the federal, state, and local governments to curb its spread – measures that discourage the face-to-face interaction required to gather petition signatures under existing Arizona law – there is a serious threat that the Committees will not be able to gather a sufficient number of petition signatures to qualify their respective initiative measures for the ballot in November 2020.

13. If the Committees can gain access to the Secretary of State’s “E-Qual” system for the secure online collection of petition signatures, the Committees are confident that they can launch successful marketing operations to encourage Arizonans to exercise their right to sign an initiative petition safely from their homes while complying with “social distancing” guidance,” and without the chance of being exposed to COVID-19.

Pursuant to Rule 80(c), Arizona Rules of Civil Procedure, I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

EXECUTED this 1st day April, 2020.

Stacy Pearson

Catherine Sigmon states as follows:

1. I am the Treasurer of Save Our Schools Arizona (“SOSAZ”), an Arizona political action committee, and am authorized to provide this Declaration on SOSAZ’s behalf.

2. SOSAZ is the proponent of the Save Our Schools Act (I-33-2020), a statewide initiative measure filed with the Secretary of State on February 26, 2020 for which it is currently gathering petition signatures.

3. SOSAZ is attempting to collect petition signature using only volunteer petition circulators, comprised of educators, retirees, and other concerned citizens. To date, it has gathered approximately 50,000 total signatures.

4. SOSAZ has a great deal of experience in gathering petition signatures. In the summer of 2017, it gathered more than 111,000 petition signatures to refer a measure to the ballot. It did by quickly activating and mobilizing a large network of volunteers to gather signatures right as the Arizona summer took hold. This is the network which SOSAZ had just begun to tap into when the World Health Organization declared COVID-19 a pandemic, and the federal government, the State, and municipalities in Arizona began to take aggressive measures to prevent its spread.

5. Before the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic, SOSAZ was primed, prepared, and on track to gather enough petition signatures – including a substantial “buffer” of additional signatures – in advance of the July 2, 2020 to qualify for the November 2020 ballot.

6. As Arizonans have begun following guidance put out by the Centers for Disease Control and Arizona Department of Health Services, cities with large populations began requiring the closure of areas where members of the public typically gather, and Governor Doug Ducey issued an executive order requiring the closure of restaurants and other establishments in counties with a confirmed case of COVID-19, SOSAZ’s petition signature-gathering efforts have slowed to a near-halt. There are no more large-scale events at which to gather signatures, and where there are still potential signers out and about, they are increasingly hesitant to interact despite the use of mitigation measures by petition circulators.

7. On March 30, 2020, Governor Doug Ducey issued an executive order titled “Stay Home, Stay Healthy, Stay Connected” that requires Arizonans to limit their time outside their homes except for when they are performing certain “essential activities” and “essential functions” until at least April 30, 2020. The issuance of this order was widely covered in local media, where it has been portrayed as a “stay at home” order like those implemented in various other states. SOSAZ believes that this order will have a strong psychological effect on Arizonans and will further compound the difficulties they were already encountering before it went into effect.

8. SOSAZ has explored potential alternatives, such as mailing petitions to interested persons to circulate within their families. This, however, is expensive, inefficient, and does not provide SOSAZ with a realistic likelihood of permitting it to gather large numbers of valid petition signatures.

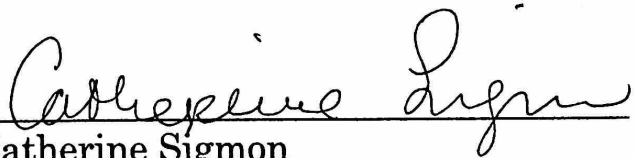

9. In short, due to the COVID-19 pandemic and the various measures taken by the federal, state, and local governments to curb its spread – measures that discourage the face-to-face interaction required to gather petition signatures under existing Arizona law – there is a serious threat that SOSAZ will not be able to gather enough petition signatures to qualify its initiative measure for the ballot in November 2020.

10. If SOSAZ can gain access to the Secretary of State's "E-Qual" system for the secure online collection of petition signatures, SOSAZ is confident that it can launch successful a marketing operation to encourage Arizonans to exercise their right to sign an initiative petition safely from their homes, and without the chance of being exposed to COVID-19.

Pursuant to Rule 80(c), Arizona Rules of Civil Procedure, I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

EXECUTED this 1st day of April, 2020.

Andrew Chavez states as follows:

1. I am the managing member of AZ Petition Partners, LLC (“Petition Partners”). Petition Partners is a full-service petition gathering and consulting firm that has worked on behalf of clients throughout Arizona and the rest of the country for more than 20 years.

2. In those 20 years, Petition Partners has worked on at least 35 statewide initiative measures, at least 3 statewide referendum measures, at least 40 municipal initiative or referendum measures, and at least 400 statewide, legislative, federal, and local candidates. All told, Petition Partners has gathered more than twelve million petition signatures throughout the country, and more than 8 million in Arizona.

3. In short, Petition Partners and I have a wealth of experience in petition gathering in Arizona, which is why Petition Partners is by far the most successful petition gathering vendor in Arizona.

4. Because Arizona law requires that proponents of initiative and referendum measures use paper petitions, effective petition signature gathering occurs through a face-to-face, interpersonal interaction between a petition circulator and potential signer.

5. A petition circulator generally carries a clipboard with the petition (attached to the title and text of the measure), approaches a potential signer, and asks if they would be interested in signing. A dialogue between the parties often follows, as potential signers often have questions or want to know more about the measure.

6. If the petition circulator is successful, they ultimately give the petition and a pen to the signer to sign and print all required information. Because each petition sheet has fifteen signature lines, each sheet could come into contact with at least sixteen people (i.e., all signers, plus the circulator).

7. Petition signatures can be gathered in many different places, but our experience teaches that large public gatherings – with a large potentially-captive audience – are the most efficient locations. This includes sporting events political rallies, school functions, festivals, and cultural events (such as the Arizona State Fair).

8. In addition, good petition circulators also identify prime locations in cultural centers to perform their duties. This includes the areas outside of libraries and other public buildings, and street corners in high-traffic areas such as downtown Phoenix, Old Town Scottsdale, and Mill Avenue in Tempe

9. Petition Partners is currently gathering petition signatures for the Second Chances, Rehabilitation, and Public Safety Act, the Smart and Safe Arizona Act, and the Invest in Education Act (collectively, the “Initiatives”). Before the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic, Petition Partners and its 330 employed petition circulators were using primarily the traditional petition circulating methods outlined above, and were on pace to gather a sufficient number of signatures for each of the Initiatives prior to the July 2, 2020 deadline to submit signatures to the Secretary of State.

10. As Arizonans have begun following guidance put out by the Centers for Disease Control and Arizona Department of Health Services, cities with large populations began requiring the closure of areas where members of the public typically gather, and Governor Doug Ducey issued an executive order requiring the closure of restaurants and other establishments in counties with a confirmed case of COVID-19, the signature-gathering efforts for the Initiatives slowed considerably.

11. There are no more large-scale events at which to gather signatures, and the closure of public buildings and bars and restaurants in high-traffic areas means that those locations now cannot be counted on. And where there are still potential signers out and about, they are increasingly hesitant to interact with petition circulators despite Petition Partners' mandated use of mitigation measures to help prevent the spread of COVID-19 (including the mandatory use of hand sanitizer, single use pens, and the use of disinfectant on clipboards and other materials).

12. On March 30, 2020, Governor Doug Ducey issued an executive order titled "Stay Home, Stay Healthy, Stay Connected" that requires Arizonans to limit their time outside their homes except for when they are performing certain "essential activities" and "essential functions" until at least April 30, 2020. The issuance of this order was widely covered in local media, where it has been portrayed as a "stay at home" order like those implemented in various other states.

13. Since this executive order went into effect, Petition Partners has observed another significant drop in the number of petition signatures it is able to gather on behalf of the Initiatives. Reports from Petition Partners' employees indicate that where potential petition signers are still gathered in any significant number (for example, lines at grocery stores), those people are even less likely than they were before to interact with petition circulators or sign a petition.

14. This emergency situation is unlike anything I have ever encountered in all my years in the petition-gathering business.

Pursuant to Rule 80(c), Arizona Rules of Civil Procedure, I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct

DECLARATION OF JON SEATON

Jon Seaton states as follows:

1. I am a member of Arizona Grassroots Advocates, LLC ("AGA"). AGA is a full service consulting firm that offers petition gathering, canvassing, and other similar services to candidates and committees throughout Arizona.
2. Because Arizona law requires that proponents of initiative and referendum measures use paper petitions, effective petition signature gathering occurs through a face-to-face, interpersonal interaction between a petition circulator and potential signer. AGA's approach to petition gathering is targeted, and occurs primarily by its petition circulators going door-to-door to select homes in select neighborhoods.
3. A petition circulator generally carries a clipboard with the petition (attached to the title and text of the measure), approaches a potential signer, and asks if they would be interested in signing. A dialogue between the parties often follows, as potential signers often have questions or want to know more about the measure.
4. If the petition circulator is successful, they ultimately give the petition and a pen to the signer to sign and print all required information.

Because each petition sheet has fifteen signature lines, each sheet could come into contact with at least sixteen people (i.e., all signers, plus the circulator).

5. AGA is currently gathering petition signatures for the Second Chances, Rehabilitation, and Public Safety Act (collectively, the “Act”). Before the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic, AGA and its 156 employed petition circulators were using primarily the door-to-door method described above, and were on pace to meet its obligations and help the Act gather a sufficient number of signatures prior to the July 2, 2020 deadline to submit signatures to the Secretary of State.

6. As Arizonans have begun following guidance put out by the Centers for Disease Control and Arizona Department of Health Services, AGA’s signature-gathering efforts for the Act slowed considerably.

7. Specifically, AGA’s petition circulators continued going door-to-door, but people were less and less willing to open their doors to a stranger.

8. AGA began instituting mitigation measures to try and ease potential petition signers’ fears, including appropriate social distancing for all conversations. AGA’s circulators have also worn gloves and have offered signers the opportunity to use their own pens. Circulators have also carried hand sanitizer with them so signers could clean their hands after signing.

9. On March 30, 2020, Governor Doug Ducey issued an executive order titled "Stay Home, Stay Healthy, Stay Connected" that requires Arizonans to limit their time outside their homes except for when they are performing certain "essential activities" and "essential functions" until at least April 30, 2020. The issuance of this order was widely covered in local media, where it has been portrayed as a "stay at home" order like those implemented in various other states.

10. Since this executive order was announced and went into effect, AGA has observed another significant drop in the number of petition signatures it is able to gather for the Act. Reports from AGA's employees indicate that people are now even less likely to open their doors. When people open their doors, they overwhelmingly refuse to touch the clipboard, petition sheet, and pens necessary to sign the petition. Many people have commented to the circulator that he or she should not be going door-to-door and that it is not safe or legal. On Wednesday, April 1, we began experiencing yet a new difficulty with signature collection: We had at least two instances in which homeowners threatened to call the police when our circulators went to their doors because they believed our petition circulators were in violation of the Governor's order.

11. In short, the COVID-19 pandemic and the measures taken by the federal, state, and local governments to limit its spread have made AGA's job of gathering petition signatures for the Act much more difficult.

Pursuant to Rule 80(c), Arizona Rules of Civil Procedure, I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

12. EXECUTED this 1st day April, 2020.
